

Moss and Lichen

The green fuzzy organism is a moss. Mosses are primitive plants, without true leaves, stems or roots.

The grey structure is a lichen. Lichens can be various colors including orange, green, and yellow. A lichen is really two organisms working together: a fungus and an algae.

Photo by Liz Moore

Three Bridges Trail

Espanol

ATASCADERO LAND PRESERVATION SOCIETY